

EDIFICE

Edifice incorporates elements of progressive and math rock as well as eastern and ambient influences into a mainstream-friendly experience. Driving staccato rhythms, touch-style guitar playing, live strings, and thought provoking lyrics are hallmarks of Edifice material. With over two hours of original material, a love for improvisation, and sets of varying palette, Edifice is comfortable on stage beside mellow jam bands as well as heavier rock acts. Edifice has shared the stage with Lacuna Coil, 10 Years, The Exies, and other national touring acts.

Edifice bears the creative talent of a diverse group of musicians, including bass-guitarist / Warr-guitarist Brendan Brossard, tribal / tabla-inspired drummer Joshua Baumgartner, guitarist / vocalist Ryan Lewis, and cellist / violinist / guitarist Adrian Johnson. Collectively these musicians have side projects that have given them performance opportunities in England, Germany, Las Vegas, as well as both coasts of the United States. In addition, the members of Edifice have earned recognition through the Independent Music Awards and through Apple Computer. Each member of Edifice brings unique influences and experiences to the group.

Influences include King Crimson, Porcupine Tree, A Perfect Circle, Trey Gunn Band, Boards of Canada, Chevelle, Dredg, and Tool. While Edifice strives to present a unique sound, they have been likened to these groups. Edifice draws inspiration from technical music ranging from classical to jazz to progressive rock.

“During performances, the greatest compliment is the fact that many members of the audience are themselves musicians. If we can entertain and inspire our fellow musicians, that lets us know we’re doing something right.”
